U.S. Policy Seems Strange To Publisher From Turkey

United States foreign policy shares with many new nations through the years has sufsometimes appears to be a the problem of illiteracy. fered economic and legal case of preaching one thing said yesterday.

yet you work behind the cannot read, which is one reascenes to stop us from bomb-son Yeni Adana has no woming Cyprus," Cetin Remzi Yu-en's section. regir observed. "The educated His paper is just beginning photographers' cameras and man-in-the-street in Turkey to feel the impact of a relawonders why you interfere in tively new phenomenon in our business.

While most Turkish newspaper readers are more con-less depended on government cerned with their government's new land reform bill now we're teaching the stores than with foreign affairs, Yuregir said, they are talking about establishing warmer re- 1918 by Yuregir's father and lations with Moscow and Peking and exerting more independence from the United States.

Yuregir, 27, and his wife are in Washington on a tour of newspaper plants in eight American and Canadian cities as the guests of the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation.

Yeni Adana, the six-page, 2500 - circulation daily that Yuregir publishes in Adana, is the winner of the Foundation's first World Press Achievement Award.

The award was established to recognize "those newspapers of the free world, which under the adverse circumstances frequently found in developing countries, are contributing to the social, economic, political and cultural advancement of their peoples."

Yuregir, whose paper was chosen from 36 entries from 24 countries, does not mind having Turkey labeled a "developing country.

"We should face facts," he said, noting that Turkey

Only 25 to 35 per cent of tion of 230,000, are literate, he days in 1960. "You bomb North Viet Nam, said. Women, particularly, Turkey-advertising.

"Newspapers have more or advertising for revenue, but to advertise, too," he said.

Yeni Adana was founded in sanctions and withholding of practicing another, a the residents of Adana, a newsprint by the government, Turkish newspaper publisher southern city with a popula which closed it down for 17

> "But we don't have much trouble with the present regime," the young publisher said. "Police don't confiscate there is no more censorship."